Chronogram Conversations: The Reckoning: Work, Sex, Power, and #MeToo | Recap

By Chronogram Staff

The panel: Moderator Hillary Harvey, Dr. Eve Waltermaurer, Sharone Wellington-deAnda, Meira Blaustein, Susan Zimet, Tameka Ramsey, and Assemblymember Didi...
Barrett.

On January 26, Chronogram, in partnership with Radio Kingston, hosted a panel discussion on the #MeToo movement, sexual assault, gender identity, and female empowerment at Aaron Rezny Studios at 76 Print Street Studios LLC in Kingston. The panel was moderated by Hillary Harvey, editor-at-large at Chronogram and host of Radio Kingston's weekly news program "The Source." Panelists included Sharone Wellington-deAnda, Planned Parenthood Mid-Hudson Valley Board member and internship and project coordinator with the school of professional programs at Marist College; Assemblymember Didi Barrett (District 106); Dr. Eve Waltermaurer Director of Research and Evaluation at the Benjamin Center for Public Policy Initiatives at SUNY New Paltz; finance and tech industry veteran Tameka Ramsey; Woodstock Film Festival executive director Meira Blaustein; and Susan Zimet, executive director of Hunger Action Network of New York and author of Roses and Radicals: The Epic Story of How American Women Won the Right to Vote.

The event, which was broadcast live on Radio Kingston and Facebook, was a fundraiser for Planned Parenthood Mid-Hudson Valley. Special thanks to Jimmy Buff and Kale Kaposhilin of Radio Woodstock, Aaron Rezny for hosting the event in his studio, and Chronogram reader Jude Asphar, who suggested the theme for the event.
Also pictured, producer Kale Kaposhilin.

Aaron Rezny welcoming attendees to his studio.
The panel sparked lively post-event conversations.

The Planned Parenthood Mid–Hudson Valley street team.
Moderator Hillary Harvey and Dr. Eve Waltermaurer.
There were many salient comments from attendees.
Megumi Naganoma asks a question of the panel.

Chronogram's mission is to nourish the creative and cultural life of the Hudson Valley. If you enjoyed this article by Chronogram Staff and would like to support more like it, please consider make a simple one-click contribution:

CONTRIBUTE 20c 50c $2

SPEAKING OF...

Chronogram Conversations Recap: Dover Plains
A look at the highlights from the January Chronogram Conversation in Dover Plains.
by Chronogram Staff | Feb 1, 2018

The Reckoning: Work, Sex, Power, and #MeToo
A Chronogram Conversations panel discussion with community leaders, academics, public officials, therapists, and activists and moderated by editor Hillary Harvey on January 26, 7–9pm in Kingston.
by Chronogram Staff | Jan 11, 2018

Chronogram Conversation Recap: Millerton
A look at the highlights from the December Chronogram Conversation in Millerton.
by Chronogram Staff | Jan 1, 2018

Readers also liked...

Chronogram Conversations: Live at the Lace Mill
On February 8, Luminary Media launched the first in a monthly series of community events, titled Chronogram Conversations. Nearly 100 invited guests—community leaders, influencers, and creatives—filled the Lace Mill in Midtown Kingston.
by Chronogram Staff
Mar 1, 2017

RSVP for Our Next Chronogram Conversations in New Paltz
Contested Development: Growth & Sustainability in Our Hudson Valley Towns
by Chronogram Staff
Sep 1, 2017