Description of Individual Programs

The Ceramics program emphasizes the conceptual, technical, and professional development of its graduate students. The program provides a structure where students who work in functional, sculptural, and multimedia manners are challenged to critically assess, discuss, execute, and advance the ideas expressed in their work. The ceramics program’s 10,000 square foot facility is housed in the new Fine Arts Building, providing students with spacious studios and very comprehensive new equipment and kilns with which to work. Web site: www.newpaltz.edu/ceramics

The Metal program is premised on the idea that contemporary metal is a rich and complex activity. While existing in an historical context of processes, forms, style, and subjects, contemporary metal engages its time in a more expansive manner. While the experiential condition of studio work is valued, it is grounded in the idea that art is contingent to social conditions and the nature of the changing arena of metal. Students are given the opportunity and encouraged to seek their particular voice as characterized by the pragmatic and theoretical conditions of our world. It is ultimately our objective to work with individuals who regard thinking, making, and participating as significant acts in art. The 10,000 square foot studios supply equipment for working in a wide variety of traditional and contemporary metals techniques, as well as allocating private, efficiently organized spaces for each student. Web site: www.newpaltz.edu/metal
The Painting/Drawing program encourages the technical, conceptual, and professional development of its students through a balance of intensive studio experience and critical and theoretical dialogue. Students working in traditional, experimental, and multi-media formats are challenged to assess their work in a contemporary context. The program’s 10,000 square foot facility in Smiley Art Building includes private 200 square foot studios for each MFA student. Web site: www.newpaltz.edu/painting

The Intermedia Design: Visual Research Laboratory Program is temporarily suspended. The Intermedia Design: Visual Research Laboratory program focuses on the common ground shared by photography and graphic design. The nature and practice of these disciplines have undergone dramatic change in the last ten years with the advent of digital photography and design at the desktop computing level. This program explores the role of the artist in determining the nature, content and form of contemporary communication, using both new technology and traditional media in graphic design and photography. Students may choose to locate their practice in one of these areas or in areas of convergence such as multimedia/interactive computer projects, installation/public art or artists’ books. Both collaborative and individually generated projects are developed in an environment which fosters visual and technical experimentation, intellectual exploration, critical and theoretical research, and engagement with contemporary social issues. Extensive, well-ventilated darkroom, studio, and computer facilities, provide students with a supportive environment in which to do their work. Web site: www.newpaltz.edu/vrl

It is the goal of the Printmaking program to prepare students to be professional artists and to teach art at the college level. The objective is to offer a program that thoroughly grounds the student in a broad range of traditional, contemporary, and innovative techniques. The program is geared to encourage students to formulate and articulate their philosophical and personal concepts and translate them into visual ideas. The program meets these objectives by offering a mix of intensive studio experience with critical and theoretical dialogue. The program is dedicated to acquainting students with the rich and diverse world of multicultural art and its formative impact on the contemporary art scene. The new printmaking studio is a state-of-the-art facility containing a full range of new and top-of-the-line equipment and presses. Students have the capability of working in the traditional processes of intaglio, lithography, serigraphy, and woodcut, as well as contemporary photo, digital, and mixed media printmaking processes. Web site: www.newpaltz.edu/printmaking

The graduate Sculpture program embraces and cultivates the diversity and complexity of what is defined as sculpture in today’s practice. The program supports investigations that encompass installation, intervention, performance, sound and video as well as more traditional approaches to sculpture. The sculpture program encourages independent exploration, experimentation, critical awareness, and engagement in the issues, forms and contexts of contemporary, professional investigation. The program challenges and expands on the individual graduate student’s rationale and modes of working. In a flexible program encompassing the breadth of today’s sculptural possibilities, each student has the opportunity to articulate an individual vision and make a significant contribution to the discipline.

The overall footprint of the sculpture facilities encompasses 10,000 square feet of space, which is divided into individual studio space for MFA, MA and BFA students, general class workspace, an area for wood working, and an area for welding and metal work. The facilities also include a separate room for experimental work such as installations. Equipment includes welding and metal working tools and machinery, wood working tools and machinery, video and sound equipment and a computer lab for digital image, sound and video production. Web site: www.newpaltz.edu/sculpture

The deadline for receipt of all admissions materials is February 15; late applicants need to contact the specific program directly for exceptional consideration. Generally, students are accepted for the fall semester. Exceptions to deadlines and matriculation will be reviewed in particular studio areas. The MAAS is a studio-based degree for those working to begin an in-depth study in a particular studio area. It may serve as a basis for a variety of art-related careers or a more advanced degree. It can lead to permanent certification to teach art in New York State. A final display of student work for review by the faculty is required. Admission into the MAAS and completion of some or all of this program’s requirements do not insure continuation into the MFA program.

Program Requirements

File a degree plan of study during the first semester after matriculation.

Completion of prescribed course work and other requirements within five years after matriculation.

Maintain a cumulative average of 3.0 or better in all studio courses and a minimum cumulative average of 3.0 in all courses taken at New Paltz, with no more than two grades below B-.
