Offering a perfect introduction to HVWP’s unique, teacher-led professional development, OPEN INSTITUTES are for teachers who want to include more writing in their classrooms and in their lives. Plan to write. Plan to think. Plan to create. Plan to join a learning community.

EXPLORING THE DIGITAL WORLD
Busy teachers will enjoy having time to explore and experiment with various digital technologies that support student writers in English, social studies, science, and math classrooms. Through a series of interactive workshops, we will learn new tools and strategies to support students’ 21st century learning projects.
Audience: Grade 5-College teachers
July 11-15 (Mon-Fri) / SUNY New Paltz / 18 Inservice hours / Fee: $150

BUILDING A CLASSROOM WRITING COMMUNITY
As we write together, we will consider the central role that writing can play in creating an authentic, engaged learning community. Join us as we explore and share innovative ideas aligned with the Common Core to bring back to our classrooms in September. Audience: K-Grade 12 teachers
July 18-22 (Mon-Fri) / SUNY New Paltz / 18 Inservice hours / Fee: $150

INSPIRING ART & WRITING at STORM KING ART CENTER
We invite teachers to learn by doing, moving, making, and talking. Together, we will explore strategies for incorporating writing, visual arts, and inquiry-based teaching in the classroom. Discover how art and writing can energize your daily teaching and engage your students. Audience: PreK-College teachers
August 2-4 (Tues-Thurs) / Storm King Art Center / 18 Inservice hours / Fee: $150
