Teachers of writing write. At HVWP, we envision a future where every person is an accomplished writer, engaged learner, and active participant in a digital, interconnected world, and we believe in the collective capacity of teachers to lead this work.

Open Description: We often meet teachers who would love to join us for an HVWP Invitational Institute, but cannot make the time commitment. This summer we are offering something that might work for you: a 15-hour, 5 day introduction to the HVWP experience.

Aligned with the Common Core Learning Standards, this summer institute is open to K-12 teachers of all disciplines who are eager to incorporate engaging reading and writing teaching strategies in their classrooms. Join us as writers to learn and share new approaches and return to school in the fall with ideas to enliven your classroom.

Topics include: building a writing community, harnessing the reading-writing-speaking connection, writing to learn across all disciplines, using 21st Century technologies, and incorporating art and graphics into the writing classroom.

Treat yourself to this opportunity to write, renew, and recharge in beautiful New Paltz on the SUNY campus!

Dates: July 14-16 (Tuesday-Thursday) & July 20-21 (Monday-Tuesday)
Time: 9:00 am - 12:00 pm
Location: SUNY New Paltz, Old Main Building, Room TBA
Cost: $125 (check made payable to Hudson Valley Writing Project, see below for address)
Registration: Mid-Hudson Teacher Center (www.mhtc.dcboces.org)
Course Instructors: Bonnie Kaplan, Co-Director, Hudson Valley Writing Project
               Kristen Masson-Diedhiou, HVWP Teacher Consultant