Screenings

The Unafraid

The Amnesty International Student Group and the Latin American & Caribbean Studies Program invite you to the screening of the documentary The Unafraid. The documentary follows three immigrant students and their struggles to get a college education in the US. This is an amazing opportunity for everybody to engage in a very important conversation. A panel discussion follows the film.

Mapping Police Violence

MAPPING POLICE VIOLENCE

SAM SINYANGWE
THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 8
6 p.m. | LECTURE CENTER 100

2018: Police killed 852 people. (to date)

2017: Police killed 1,147 people.*

* There were ONLY 14 DAYS in 2017 where police did not kill someone.

Black people are most likely to be killed by police.

Where you live matters.

Black men are 7 times more likely to be killed by police in Oklahoma than Georgia.

13 of the 100 largest U.S. city police departments kill black men at higher rates than the U.S. murder rate.

MAPPING POLICE VIOLENCE

is supported by funds from Friends of The Benjamin Center and the College of Liberal Arts & Sciences. This event is co-sponsored by the Resident Hall Student Association, the SUNY New Paltz Educational Opportunity Program and the Diversity & Inclusion Council, Student Affairs, and the Departments of Geography, History, Political Science, and Sociology.

All data captured 10/12/18. mappingpoliceviolence.org

It's not about crime.

Buffalo, NY

VIOLENT CRIME RATE 12 PER 100k

0 PEOPLE SHOT

and killed by Buffalo police 2013–2016

Orlando, FL

VIOLENT CRIME RATE 9 PER 100k

15 PEOPLE SHOT

and killed by Orlando police
2013–2016

There is no accountability.

99% of cases in 2015 have not resulted in any officer(s) involved being convicted of a crime.

NO CRIMINAL CHARGES OFFICER(S) CHARGED OFFICER(S) CONVICTED

Sam Sinyangwe is a data scientist, social analyst, and co-founder of We the Protesters who works with communities of color to fight systemic racism through cutting-edge policies and strategies. As protests emerged in the wake of 2014 shooting of Michael Brown in Ferguson, MO, he connected with Ferguson activists DeRay McKesson, Johnetta Elzie, and Brittany Packnett to develop policy solutions to address police violence in America. Together, they co-founded Mapping Police Violence, a research collaborative focused upon collecting comprehensive data on police killings nationwide to quantify the impact of police violence in communities, and Campaign Zero, a platform to advance data-driven solutions to end police violence.

Sam grew up in Orlando, FL, and has been involved in community organizing and advocacy since he was in high school. He graduated from Stanford University in 2012 where he studied how race and racism impact the U.S. political system.
