Creative Approaches to Engaging Children in Trauma Processing

Craig Haen, Ph.D., CGP, RDT, LCAT, FAGPA
Warming-Up
Trauma is...

- “Too much, too soon, and too fast.” (Giarreto)
- “The ongoing effort of survivors to stand on guard not to remember.” (Lahad)
- “The conflict between the will to deny horrible events & the will to proclaim them aloud is the central dialectic of psychological trauma.” (Herman, 1992)
There is functionality to these symptoms and usually a noted difference in people’s response a few weeks after. The majority of children exposed to a traumatic event will NOT need formal psychological intervention.

What often mediates the reaction is early intervention & connection to familiar networks of care & support.

Clinical work in the acute stages of trauma and disaster is NOT psychotherapy.
Whether an event becomes traumatic has much to do with the meanings one ascribes to the event.

Young people need adults to help give them a framework for what has happened.

The advantage of a public trauma is that people have the chance to be part of a community—to sense that they are not alone.
Recovery is About…

- Establishing Safety
  - Physical, Social, Psychological, Moral
    (Bloom, 1997)

- Remembrance & Mourning

- Re-Connection
  - to community, family & a sense of “going on being”
Tenets of Experiential Work

- Healing exists in relationships
- Change is an implicit, and explicit, process
- Experiencing over describing
- Here-and-now over recalling the past
- Spontaneity & creativity → health & growth
- Non-verbal communication
Arts-Based Approaches

- Provide entry into the locked-down system
- Provide distance and containment
- Bridge the hemispheric split between memory & language and target implicit memory
- Engage with play
- Concretize memories
- Explore past or future
- Engage children kinesthetically
- Provide forms of interactive regulation
Externalize
Organize
Re-Integrate
“Contemporary neuroscience, in dissolving the presumed boundaries between perception and motor activation, demonstrates that—as far as the brain is concerned—there is much less difference between lived and imagined experience than we have previously supposed. The implication here is that therapeutic change may be promoted through imagining new behavior as well as by actually behaving in ways that are new.”

(Wallin, 2007)
COUNTERING RESISTANCE

- Channeling resistant energy into treatment-compliant behavior.

- Moving rigid, stuck interpersonal positions into the realm of more playful engagement.
Giving Voice to the Unspeakable

- Giving form to that which is formless
- Holding contradictions
- Fostering movement toward being an artist, and also being a witness to one’s own creation
Learning by Doing
Where are they stuck?
Identifying Points of Intervention

- What’s the memory/feeling/thought that the child keeps returning to/can’t get out of their mind?
- The place where the defense crops up.
Re-experiencing aspects of the original trauma in the here-and-now & relative safety of the therapeutic relationship where the old memories & feelings can be paired with new, corrective experiences.
Three Phases of Treatment

1. Developing resources to regulate arousal & restore self-esteem and competency
2. Addressing Memories (Working-Through)
3. Exploring relationships and moving on from the past

(Ogden & Fisher, 2015)
PTSD Symptom Clusters

HYPERAROUSAL  SOCIAL FRAGMENTATION  INTRUSION  AVOIDANCE
Addressing Hyperarousal
Treatment
Goal

- Soothe the brainstem (Perry)
Addressing Social Fragmentation
Treatment Goals

- Undo Aloneness (Fosha)
- Create a relationship that can hold increasing layers of complexity, error, humanity, spontaneity, mutuality
My Life as a Book

When your stepdad hurts you!!

Lied to betrayed

Guilt
Addressing Intrusion
Treatment Goals

- Internalize a sense of safety and self-efficacy
- Pairing of trauma memories with new experience & effective action
Greetings myself,

I am Modax. I am writing this letter on January 4th, 2014. Seeing that I have written this letter to you, you did not commit suicide. I am the new Bill Gates. A man named Morocph had enslaved humanity. I was the one that had the unicorns squelch him. As there are unicorns, you will receive the magmions but only if you stop being so unhappy and just do the work. I wish you good luck on your problem. Which the boys put really will wake up with friendship to others.

Your friend,
Modax H.

Ps. Even though you somehow doubt it, you really are amazing.
Addressing
Avoidance
Treatment Goals

- Expand the Window of Tolerance (Siegel)
- Reduce Shame
RE-STORYING

- Strengthening internal locus of control by assuming roles of power & competence.
- Speaking from more vulnerable parts of self that did not get voiced in real life.
“No ceremony attaches to the moment that a child sees his own worth reflected in the eyes of an encouraging adult. Though nothing apparent marks the occasion, inside that child a new view of self might take hold.

He is not just a person who is a burden to the sad adults in his life, not just a child who fails to solve his family’s problems, who fails to rescue them from pain and madness or addiction or poverty or unhappiness. No, this child might be someone else, someone whose appearance before this one adult revealed specialness or lovability, or value.”

-Gavin De Becker (The Gift of Fear)