With midterms upon us, it's hard to think about anything but studying, but don't miss the line up of talks coming your way as the 2016 presidential elections get closer. In particular, don't miss our special guest, Professor Bruce Miroff of SUNY Albany who is coming to explain what's going on in this crazy year on October 20th (see p. 8 for details). Talks

Between Whim and Rule: Legal Discretion and Immigration Law

On Thursday Oct. 20 at 5pm, in JFT 1010, Professor Jamie Kelly of Vassar College will give a talk titled: “Between Whim and Rule: Legal Discretion and Immigration Law.”

Professor Kelly describes his talk by noting that he uses a recently rediscovered essay by H.L.A. Hart (“Discretion,” Harvard Law Review 127, 2013) as a springboard for thinking about contemporary problems in U.S. immigration law. He will examine how legal discretion operates via policing, prosecutorial discretion, and executive orders, and argue that many of the most pressing problems stem from the amount of discretion generated by the current system of immigration enforcement.

Internships (paid!)

NY State Legislative Internship

Please attend an information session about the New York State Legislative Internships on Tuesday, October 4, at 12:30pm in JFT 1010. We will be joined by Kathleen McCarty and Nicholas Parrella, internship directors for the State Assembly and State Senate. Below is a brief description of the internship. Please join us if you are considering this internship and to start an application.

This is a full-time internship for Spring 2017 in the New York State legislature in Albany, New York, in which students work directly for a state representative in either of the two houses of the legislature (Assembly or Senate). In addition, students will also take evening classes focusing on New York state government, politics, and policy making. Students can also earn up to 15 college credits. For American government concentrations in the Political Science major, six of those credits can go toward the concentration, another three count toward the major elective, and the last six count toward graduation but not the major or liberal arts credits. This is a paid internship that includes a stipend of $5,025 to cover the cost of living in Albany. We will advise you in finding housing while living in Albany as well.

We strongly encourage students to consider and apply for this internship. It will provide you with essential experience and professional contacts working in the most important state capital in the country. If you are interested in working in government in any capacity after you graduate, this internship is the best possible start to your career. Do not pass up this opportunity.

The deadline for applications is November 1, but we will want to have your application complete by October 29. If you are interested in applying, please contact pampines@newpaltz.edu, or stop by JFT 1000.

Internships

NY State Senator George Latimer

NY State Senator George Latimer's campaign is seeking Organizing Intern positions running throughout the fall. Organizing Interns will be trained in using campaign software to help target voters with opportunities to attend events with Democratic candidates. Other activities include talking to voters. We will work to match students to the best of their skills. Organizing Interns will get an overall view of the campaign, learn about the messaging of the week, get an inside view of the politics of the area, and have an opportunity to ask questions and learn from senior staff.

Interested applicants should contact Alex at:
alexsesd123@gmail.com

This is a tremendous opportunity to gain valuable campaign experience in Field, Finance and Social Media operations and work side-by-side with local leaders.

Talks

Hispanics and the Elections

A record 27.3 million Hispanics are eligible to vote in 2016, and almost 12 million of them are millennials. Will they actually turn out and vote in record numbers as well? How are local organizers seizing the ever polarizing elections to compel Latinos to vote? What can we learn from history and Latinos' civic and political participation?

Come to a panel discussion, moderated by managing editor of La Voz Mariel Fiori, to hear it from community activists and Bard faculty, including:

- Professor Jonathan Becker, Director of Bard Center for Civic Engagement; Associate Professor of Political Studies and Director of Globalization and International Studies
- Laura García, Racial Justice Program Manager for YWCA Orange County and founder of Dreamers with No Borders
- Sandra Oxford, President of the Sullivan County Branch of the NAACP and member of the NYS Working Families Party Committee
- Milagros Lecuona, councilwoman of the City of White Plains since 2008

Free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

Conferences

Women Winning the Vote - Centennial

The Benjamin Center for Public Policy Initiatives at SUNY New Paltz in collaboration with the Women's, Gender, and Sexualities program, and the Departments of History and Political Science at SUNY New Paltz, The Rockefeller Institute of the State University of New York; the FDR Library; and the League of Women Voters of New York State will hold a statewide conference on the past, present, and future of women in politics upon the occasion of the hundredth anniversary of women winning suffrage in New York State. Our conference convenes April 21-22, 2017; day one at the Wallace Center or the FDR Library in Hyde Park, NY and day two at SUNY New Paltz in New Paltz, NY.

The 2017 centennial of women's right to vote in New York offers a unique opportunity to look back at this benchmark moment. We will examine both the history of the women's movement and the history of New York State, engaging in an intergenerational dialogue about women's subsequent political activism in New York, as well as the overall advancement of women's human and civil rights since the suffrage victory. By bringing together scholars with a variety of approaches and research specialties, we will contribute an understanding of past accomplishments with a clearer picture of present problems and our unfinished agenda for the future.

Mark your calendar now for this important conference!

Internships

Abigail Waldron ('17) for the New York State Public Interest

My name is Abigail Waldron. I am currently in my second week interning with the Zephyr Teachout for Congress Campaign, and so far, I've already had the chance of seeing both Zephyr and Bernie Sanders make amazing speeches, and got to meet future voters, one of whom is ninety-seven years old, and used to do what I am currently doing.

I make about one hundred phone calls to potential voters every Thursday night; canvas for volunteers at local events, such as the recent Michael Moore discussion on campus and the Bernie/Zephyr rally in town; and I wander around New Paltz and local areas knocking on doors dishing out info about Zephyr to voters. This internship opportunity allows me to get hands-on experience for the credits one would obtain in the classroom. I have until November 8th, Election Day, and this is already such an invaluable experience for me.
