October News

The Spring 2018 schedule of classes will soon go live (and is included in detail inside) and there are a few items to note here. As mentioned in the first newsletter, the only "Political Theory" course being offered this AY is Professor Lefkowitz's American Political Thought, which you may take to satisfy the Theory requirement in the Political Science major (your advisor will need to do a workflow to have that reflected on your progress report). The Junior Seminar next term, taught by Professor Lipson, will count as a Law elective (its focus will be on conservative legal activism).

The two senior seminars (in American and International Politics) can only be "added" with permission of the chair, so please email your preference for one or the other to Erin Stewart (stewart@newpaltz.edu) and you will be added based on need. First priority will go to seniors who need it to graduate! Others will be allowed in as space permits.

Free Speech on Campus: The Conversation Continues Thursday, October 19

The Department of Political Science, along with the Free Speech Task Force and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, is pleased to host a visit by Professor Don Downes of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, author and scholar of numerous books on free speech and academic freedom. Professor Downes will be giving a talk on Thursday, Oct 19 at 7 p.m. in LC 102.
